

ANNOUNCEMENT

Raj Gill

Cohort Wholesale is pleased to announce the addition of Raj Gill to its team as technical sales specialist for its British Columbia territory.

Biography

Having grown up on an apple and stone fruit farm in the Okanagan Valley, Raj joins Cohort Wholesale with a strong understanding of all aspects of fruit production. After graduating from the University of Victoria with a B.Sc. in biology, Raj diversified his experience working in agricultural lending in the Fraser Valley region before returning to the Okanagan, working as a horticulturist and quality standards technician for a fruit packer while also taking on more responsibilities on his family farm.

From your first conversation with him, you will immediately appreciate Raj's enthusiasm for working with customers to understand their challenges and introduce new ideas and strategies to their production where they fit, and he is looking forward to connecting with both the farmers and retailers in BC.

Raj is able to serve Cohort Wholesale customers in both English and Punjabi. He is currently working towards his Professional Agrologist designation
